

ICEUR Master Class with Tatyana Valovaya 10.10.2018

As strong forces attempt at demolishing the traditional international order and liberal elites are under siege the importance of an alternative political dialogue is growing proportionally. ICEUR strives to continue its mission to identify institutions and personalities who are willing and capable to engage in such a meaningful dialogue.

The Eurasian Economic Union has long been belittled as a failed experiment to imitate the common markets of the USSR. Recently, however, it has gained significant political and financial prowess and will play an important role in shaping the future of its members as well as the relationship with the EU.

Tatyana Valovaya, Member of the Board (Minister) on the Main Areas of Integration and Macroeconomics of the Eurasian Economic Commission will comment on this dynamic development as our starred guest.
